Your Privacy

The Kansas Department on Aging is dedicated to protecting your privacy online. The Kansas Department on Aging website does not automatically collect any personally identifying information such as your name, email address, mailing address or phone number. The only way that we would obtain such information is if you provide it with a request for information, or publications. We may redirect your message to another government agency or person who is in a better position to answer your question. We will use this information to respond to your request and to track the number of email messages sent to the Kansas Department on Aging website. Unless required for law enforcement or by law, the Kansas Department on Aging does not disclose, transfer, sell or give email addresses to other persons or entities. Our website, however, does have links to other state and federal agencies. Once you link to another site, it is that site's privacy policy that controls what it collects about you.

Browsing

If you are reading, printing or downloading information such as reports, news releases, or publications from this website, no personally identifying information about you will be submitted to or monitored by us. The Kansas Department on Aging website does not use cookies for visitors to the site. A cookie is a small amount of data that is stored from a web site on a visitor's computer. Cookies are most often used to increase the usefulness of a web site. As an example, a site with a shopping cart uses cookies to keep track of what you select for purchase as you browse through the site. Cookies can also be used to store and track information about a website guest.

Like most websites, the Kansas Department on Aging website will log your domain name (e.g. aol.com), the date and time you accessed the site, and the Internet address of the website that linked you to the Kansas Department on Aging site. This information is used only for internal purposes such as allowing the Kansas Department on Aging staff to measure the number of visitors to the different sections of the website and to help improve the site for visitors.

Kansas Open Records Act

The laws of the State of Kansas and applicable federal law govern access to and release of information. Therefore, some complaints and information submitted may be subject to the Kansas Open Records Act codified at K.S.A. 45-215 et seq.
